

all eyes on consumer electronics

Larger Than Life Media Formats Drive Excitement

Impactful. Dynamic. Effective. Consumers most influenced by out-of-home advertisements are high earners and impulsive spenders who are tech-savvy 18 to 44 year-olds. This audience aligns with those purchasing TVs, handheld devices, computers, gaming consoles and other electronics. OOH has a unique ability to drive action with even the most digital-minded audiences.

3 in 4 U.S. adults have seen an OOH advertisement in the past month, leading to more encounters than any other medium. Over 68% said OOH ads are very likely to somewhat likely to influence a purchase decision, and one third have bought a product after seeing an OOH ad.

Among those who viewed OOH advertising in the past month:

- 26% visited the website advertised
- 28% shopped a sale online
- 12% used a mobile device to access a coupon or information
- 8% have blogged or posted to a social network about the product advertised

When an OOH is paired with a smartphone campaign, the reach is amplified by up to 316% (NinthDecimal). With beacon technology, our media formats can deliver contextually relevant digital content directly to a consumer's smartphone during a campaign. Plus, our experiential activations are socially-fueled and digitally-anchored, creating more interconnectivity and leaving lasting memories than other commercial messaging.

- mobile billboards
- brand ambassador teams
- beacon coupon delivery
- social media integration
- near field communication
- experiential activations
- product demonstrations
- retailtainment
- pop-up stores
- beacon technology

“OOH allows advertisers to connect with people on a more personal level. It’s a media form that has been enhanced – not weakened – by the rise of digital.”

// OAAA

